The following letter from the Entomologist explains itself: Wooster, Ohio, January 5, 1916. Mr. C. H. Waid,

Dear Sir:

To bloom on Heaven's fair shore, Safe in the garden of his dear love, Professor Gossard has referred to me your letter of recent date together with the samples of scale accompanying same. I have made a critical microscopic examination and find that parasitism abounds, but it is no unusual thing to find such conditions prevailing in Ohio at this time. I also find quantities of living scale on all of the samples, the living scale being at this time in the partially mature, back winter condition. It is hard to make comparisons concerning degrees of parasitism, hence I would scarcely feel safe to assert that the material you send has more or less live scale on it than the average for Ohio conditions. A number of instances have come to my attention when it seemed that parasites were increasing abnormally. At any rate is am quite firmly convinced that some of the samples of scale accompanying same.
